All Done

We think congratulations and a thank you should come from our entire community to the teachers of Grayling High School for the fine job that was accomplished in the recent District and Regional Basketball tournaments held in our new gymnasium.

In all nine teachers, three maintenance men, several students and a few citizens put in a lot of extra hours on these two tourneys and at no extra remuneration.

The new gym made a fine spot for the tourneys without doubt brought considerable extra business to our town at a time of the year when it was really needed by the businessmen.

Supt. of Schools Frank Bond who served as tournament manager, ended his sheet on work assignment instruction with this paragraph:

"There is no question but that tournaments bring considerable business to a town. They are a lot of fun for school personnel but it is something we can do for our community during an otherwise slack month." And a bangup job they turned in too. We say in, well done!—R. W. S.

Perpetuating The Forests

Woodman, spare that tree! Touch not a single bough! Youth it sheltered me, And I'll protect it now."

This sentiment was expressed by George Pope Gris back in 1830. "That tree," in a collective sense, more than shelter America in her youth. It sustained and gave her strength. From the time of the settlers in this country the seemingly limitless forest have been a primary resource from which the nation was built.

In 350 years twice as much wood has been used as was standing when the first colonists landed Jamestown and Plymouth. Only a little over one-third of this went for useful purposes, the rest having been lost to fire, insects and disease. Yet forests still cover more than a third of the U. S. land area today for trees grow and replace themselves if given a chance.

The forest industries recognize that the demands of advancing civilization are outdistancing the abilities of the forests to renew themselves without scientific propagation programs. The American woodsman is, therefore, perpetuating "that tree" in a costly nation-wide effort of forest conservation which has become an integral part of his business. In the past 25 years the intelligent action of private industry, in co-operation with government in many instances, has brought the rate of new growth up to approximately the rate of removal.

By providing an endless supply of trees the American woodsman is enabling America to "have its cake and eat it too."

Interesting Events In Grayling 23 Years Ago

INTERESTING ITEMS OF NEWS GATHERED FROM THE FILES OF THE AVALANCHE OF 23 YEARS AGO

March 23, 1933

Grayling's second annual Independent basketball tournament will open tonight and continue Friday and Saturday nights at the Grayling High School gymnasium. The Lumberjacks are sponsoring it and judging from last year's fine showing it will be a big success. This tournament will be for the championship of Northern Michigan.

Senator Henry Glasner of Charlotte proposes a bill to do away with all trunk line road building in Michigan the coming year, and the three million dollars received from the gas tax for road building and repair purposes alone be switched to the general fund, and be paid out for this, that and the other thing. My gosh, where we going?—Chicoygan Observer.

The Grayling Lumberjacks, Northern Michigan's leading amateur basketball team, strengthened their hold for the "Champions of the North" by winning their second tourney of the season at Harbor Springs, in defeating Harbor at the tournament there in the final game by a 25-22 score on Saturday evening. They had won from Cheboygan and Gaylord in two games the previous night. Coach Willard Cornell of Grayling High accompanied the team and took five of the players, Francis Brady, Elmer Neal, Arthur May, Ed Harrison, Reginald Sheehy and Legis Engel to his home there where they were guests for over Friday night and Saturday. They were royally entertained and their pleasant stay in the Cornell household will be long talked of. Other members of the team also had accommodations in private homes, all of which is very appreciated by the Lumberjacks and their friends at home. Hendrickson, Grayling, was high point man for the entire tournament with 34 points.

"I Like Your Nerve," said the Junior Class, dramatically, across the footlights Tuesday night, and a well-entertained audience enthusiastically told the Junior class that it liked the play. The cast was Don Kangas, Bob LaMotte, Thelma Chappel, Charles Taylor, Virginia Engel, Virgil Garver, Ed McCool, Matilda Engel, Helen Brady and Grace Jones.

For his formal opening, Tuesday, Orel Levan, who recently leased the pool room in the Sailing block, invited all those who came into his place of business to play pool free. A large crowd took advantage of Mr. Levan's invitation and enjoyed themselves very much.

Well, Spring is here folks! But no one but the man who made the calendar would know it. Spring made her bow in 1933 to plenty of the beautiful. There was probably more snow on that day than at any time this winter. So keep your red flannels on for a few more days and grab the snow shovel where it will be handy.

For this strapping beauty is the 1956 Buick SPECIAL—biggest package of high-fashion luxury and high-stepping performance ever offered in Buick's lowest-priced Series.
What that boils down to is just this:
You can call this brawny Buick your own for only a few dollars more than the price of the well-known smaller cars—for even less than some models of those very same cars. And the price we proudly print here backs up that statement.
But low price, alone, doesn't explain why Buick outsells every other car in America except the two well-known smaller ones.
The big reason, you will find, is because Buick gives you so much more pure automobile for the money.

What We Teach in Kindergarten

WHAT WE TEACH AND HOW WE TEACH IT

Pictured above are part of the children in the kindergarten class at the Grayling School. It will be noticed that the children gather in small groups about tables rather than at individual desks. This system is used to aid the child in learning to get along with other children.

By Mrs. Ruth Robertson

In Kindergarten we try to build up the right attitudes toward health, work and play. We stress the importance of kindness and consideration to every living thing, through being with other children, by stories and activities. We develop muscular co-ordination by the use of art activities such as clay work, crayole drawings, paper cutting, the use of rhythmic orchestra instruments, etc. We develop a sense toward right and wrong by conducting activities toward right and wrong.

Our general objectives are to encourage interest in the child's environment, to extend, interpret and organize experience, to acquire habits which would provide for a worthy use of leisure time, to give the child opportunity to express his ideas, to explore and to imitate.

Specific Objectives

Music

1. To promote love and joy of music.
2. To develop appreciation for good music by acquaintance with it.
3. To promote a self expression through song.
4. To meet the singing needs of the individual child.

Rhythm Band

1. To develop accurate rhythmic responses through bodily expression.
2. To develop familiarity with 2-4 3-4 and 4-4 measures.
3. To familiarize different rhythms as represented by the waltz, march, etc.

Literature

1. To stimulate in the child the desire to talk in order to say something interesting.
2. To develop the ability and habit of talking in sentences.
3. To speak one at a time not interrupting others when speaking.
4. To introduce the child to the world of children's literature.
5. To increase the child's ability to memorize.
6. To increase the child's vocabulary.

1. To develop an attitude of brotherly love.
2. To develop the attitude of courtesy.
3. To develop dependability.
4. To develop honesty.
5. To develop punctuality.

7. To know simple rules of contagion.
8. To learn the values of happiness, friendship, and joy in work.
9. To prepare the child for school on a full time basis.

Kindergarten is the child's first real contact in living with others outside of the home. When he comes to school in September he is rather shy and just a little skeptic at being left by mother in a room full of strangers, but in a few weeks he is usually looking forward to school time and seeing and working and playing with his new found friends. When he enters school in the morning or afternoon whichever the case may be he is usually just brimming with the happenings between the time he has left his friends and teacher and has to be reminded pretty often to quiet down and get ready for the work of the day.

We start out in the fall with a rather informal schedule, allowing the children time to become acquainted with their new environment. We do, however, try to have rather definite work and play periods in order to prepare the child for the more formal work of the following grades.

When the child enters school he is usually very inadequate at handling a pencil and has quite a bit of difficulty in forming definite objects with it, however, by Christmas he becomes quite adept with it, he can copy and often remembers his name as well as making the alphabet with stick letters. Some of the children can of course do more than others. Crayon work follows the same pattern, often trouble at first with following a definite line, and soon becoming very efficient with this type of work and introducing ability at combining different bright colors, and a little later taming them down to look very artistic. We also try and teach the words that match the colors beginning with the primary colors red, blue and yellow, then toward the last of the year the secondary colors.

Our singing starts with the singing of Nursery Rhymes that we have repeated through the day and advancing to many types and rhythms in song. I find that they pick up the songs that have a prettier melody than those with the slower rhythm. We sing by now first singing the song to them and then their singing it after me. They like Rhythm Band very much and soon have a preference for it.

The beginning of the school year showed an enrollment of seventy Kindergarteners. Through people moving away we are now down to sixty-one, thirty-one of instruments, the triangle seems to be the favorite, with the tambourine running second. They like the effect of the instruments being played together. We take turns so that each child has a turn at his favorite instrument.

Our Reading Readiness program consists of our Before We Read work books published by Scott Foresman Co. It compares like-nesses and differences and making up stories from pictures on through to the familiar words of Dick, Jane, etc. In Kindergarten we have a quite a variation of ages from the child who is barely five the first of December and those who are close to and some are six, so we introduce the Pre-Primer for those who are ready for reading, and if they show ability they can work at their own pace. We do not force any child to work beyond his capacity.

Our introduction to numbers is on an informal basis, learning to recognize numbers from one through ten. We count blocks, pencils and other objects, they soon learn to count the people at their table and get the correct number of pencils or crayons for them.

Safety is practiced on entering and leaving the building and in the classroom. Running in the hall is prohibited as a safety measure. We test someone get hurt. We practice fire drill and learn to recognize that alarm from the other buzzers we hear from the hall.

We have a toilet period, a milk period, a rest period and a play period. The rest period follows the milk period. We have free play with the toys both before school in the morning and afternoon. Group play is encouraged for our regular play periods.

This year I have been fortunate to have three Senior girls help me at different periods. Mary Richardson who expects to become a Kindergarten teacher helps three periods a week. Ella Mae Cook helps two periods a week and Margaret LaGrow helps five periods a week in the afternoon. Mary and Ella Mae help in the morning. These girls are very efficient and co-operative, they work on the Future Teachers Training plan. I appreciate their efforts very much and want to thank them publicly for their help.

The beginning of the school year showed an enrollment of seventy Kindergarteners. Through people moving away we are now down to sixty-one, thirty-one
